CHILDREN LOVE MATHS. PARENTS ~ PARTNERS

Dear Parent,

JHPS Rampally has a primary goal: To make learning enjoyable for children and to transform the students into independent thinkers and lifelong learners who solve real life problems using creative thinking.

We are working towards this goal of shaping and sharpening the logical aptitude of our students using their Mathematical curriculum also.

We are aware that with the progress of academic years, students tend to develop a fear towards certain fields of Mathematics such as Algebra and Trigonometry due to various reasons. A major reason happens to be the scare created inadvertently or some sort of complex misunderstanding by many adults about Maths. Such scare could be created through an off the cuff remark about Algebra and Trigonometry based on the prior experience of the adults.

In our effort to dispel this fear of Mathematics, we at JHPS have decided to take a proactive approach in driving out any hesitation/fear/apprehension that a student might be developing towards Maths.

And the key stakeholders for all the initiatives are YOU – the parents. Yes, we have invested in tools, training in order to adopt experiential learning as underlined in National Education Policy 2020 through hands-on learning experiential learning, arts and sports, story-telling based integrated pedagogy, among several others, as standard pedagogy within Mathematics as well.

We are building a wholesome classroom supported by a Mathematics Lab where every child achieves the learning outcomes through competency-based learning. The assessment tools will be aligned with the learning outcomes, capabilities, as specified.

We can't stress enough about the important role played by parents as study partners of your children. Beyond the 45-minute Math class in a day, the children spend more time at home studying/learning Maths. We need you to be the champions of Mathematics in all your interactions with your children.

We are looking forward to a fruitful partnership to create an enjoyable learning experience for the students. Let's nurture/ empower them in the present to enable them to shape the future.

Regards,
